

WHO SEEDED WIND IS NOW HARVESTING STORM

Now all democrats will be ready to denounce racism, they will repeat that blacks and whites have the same rights that police brutality must end. However, who will take side with the arsonists, with the black and white youth who are burning 25 cities in the United States? We will do it, the workmen belonging to the workingmen's party. Who Seeds wind shall harvest storm.

Can a man be trampled on because he is black in civilized America, can he be suffocated on the street because a policeman is so sure he has got the state on his side? Can you see such a scene after two hundred years of chatter against racism, of statements on equal rights? Can not be done. And the society of the wealthy has to pay a price. And it is paying dearly, police stations, looted supermarkets are on fire and the wave of revolt has not yet broken. The government is deploying the National Guard but to quell such a powerful uprising it should eliminate all black people in America.

If the social system run by the bosses, and that of the United States is its most developed form, it still produces racism and police brutality there must be a reason. The exploitation system needs slaves and if it can use skin colour to get cheaper and more submissive slaves it has no interest in ending racial discrimination. Our landowners in the countryside, corporals and conniving politicians and prefects and policemen who more often than not turn away are also well aware of this. Those who hastened to condemn the violence of the black labourers who upraised in Rosarno after the massacre of their companions know this well.

Now America is burning. A life in misery accompanied by the arrogance of policemen has become unbearable, demonstrations with petitions have run their course, the most natural responses have become fire and looting. The fire to erase the social environment in which we have to suffer such brutal bullying. Looting to take possession of those goods, which despite having produced them, are completely unobtainable to the millions of poor, mostly black, of the United States.

The workmen of the workingmen's party, who know the arrogance of those at the top, who know the reality of misery, who know how can hurt the injustices of the bosses and their governments, go beyond the general denunciation of racism, beyond simple indignation, they line up with black and white youth in revolt on the streets of American cities. It is the slaves who raise their heads, it is the new world that is manifesting itself with all its strength.
